

VOICETHREAD

Throughout the semester, during INGL3101-N07 course with Professor Jesús López we have had the opportunity to do various jobs. Some of them are an essay, a proposal, an oral report in the VoiceThread application, we have worked with the exercises in a book, among others. Personally, I have given my 200% percent by doing all these jobs, but what I think was my best job for various reasons would be the oral report in the VoiceThread app. That part with two works mentioned above, an essay and a proposal. Then, the thread of the voice consisted of orally explaining what had been raised in the essay. Which consisted of explaining the following topic: "End poverty in all its forms everywhere", and then upload it to our portfolio pending evaluation.

I consider this job to be one of the best as I learned too much while doing it. For example, I had the opportunity to practice my English orally while dictating the parts that I had to report. In addition, I was able to learn a lot about the subject of poverty and gain a little more knowledge about the sad reality that the subject entails. So, going more technologically, I was able to learn more about this new app and how to work with it. In addition, I also learned a little more about how to work in a team, since this work was in a group way. In conclusion, I took some difficult, surprising, and fun insights into making this "VoiceThread". Next, 2 images referring to what was commissioned at the time of doing this work.
